

MALDI imaging analysis of lipids in rat testis tissue

m/z images with a pixel raster size of 30μm obtained on the autoflex maX from select lipid molecular species precisely reflect the structure of individual seminiferous tubules as well as interstitial tissue between. To obtain a complete picture of the lipid distribution, imaging data were acquired on the autoflex maX in both positive and negative ion modes.